In the death of Daniel Sullivan, major and superintendent Metropolitan police, the department and the District of Columbia suffered a grievous loss.

Daniel Sullivan was appointed a member of the Metropolitan police April 9, 1889, after an honorable term of service in the United States Marine Corps. On August 13, 1898, he was promoted to the grade of sergeant, on October 1, 1905, to the grade of lieutenant, and on July 1, 1906, was given the rank of captain and assigned to the command of the second precinct. On May 1, 1909, he was transferred from the second precinct to command of the third precinct, in which precinct is located the White House, many of the foreign embassies and many fine residences of political and social leaders of the Nation, and in this command he distinguished himself in a singular manner and won the commendation of all with whom he came in contact.

On August 10, 1919, he was promoted to the grade of inspector, and on June 9, 1920, was raised to the rank of assistant superintendent. On February 11, 1922, he was promoted to the grade of major and superintendent, succeeding Maj. Harry L. Gessford, retired.

In this dignified and important assignment he rendered distinguished service and under his able guidance the police force of the District of Columbia held the undisputed confidence of all the citizens.

Major Sullivan was taken ill in the spring of 1925 and never returned to active duty. On October 1, 1925, he was called to his reward after a period of service of 36 years, in the course of which by his unusual qualities of mind and heart he endeared himself to all. His life and character are worthy of emulation by all public officials. He was a capable executive, a patriotic citizen, a faithful and devoted husband and father, a fine, high type of Christian gentleman:

"His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him,
That nature might stand up and say to all the world:
'Here was a man.'"

CLIFFORD L. GRANT

The department also sustained a serious loss in the death of Inspector Clifford L. Grant, who was appointed a member of the Metropolitan police force, November 10, 1888, after a period of honorable service in the United States Army. September 24, 1905, he was promoted to the grade of detective sergeant and was later assigned to duty in the office of the United States attorney for the District of Columbia. On September 4, 1915, he was promoted to the grade of inspector, Metropolitan police, and assigned to the command of the detective bureau, in which assignment he distinguished himself in a singular manner, being especially well equipped for this important branch of police service. On December 16, 1925, he collapsed at his desk at police headquarters. He was hurried to the Emergency Hospital, where, despite heroic efforts on the part of the hospital staff and police surgeons, he passed to the great beyond. He was an able, energetic, capable, and fearless official.

LIEUT. JAMES M. GILES

James M. Giles was appointed to the Metropolitan police force, January 14, 1895, was promoted to the grade of sergeant July 3, 1906, and to the grade of lieutenant December 1, 1913, having previously been assigned to command of the Tenleytown substation, a branch of the seventh precinct, which command he held at the time of his death, August 28, 1925. He was a capable and efficient police official and during his long period of service earned the high regard of his associates and superiors as well as of the citizens of the District of Columbia.

Two members of the department met violent deaths while actively engaged in the performance of the hazardous duties of their chosen calling, namely Pvts. Clyde C. Koontz and Earl A. Skinner, both motor-cycle officers.

Private Koontz, while pursuing a speeding automobile November 28, 1925, collided with another automobile and sustained a fracture of the skull, from which he died at Casualty Hospital on November 30, 1925.

Pvt. Earl A. Skinner, while responding to a burglar alarm June 7, 1926, was thrown from his motor cycle and sustained injuries from which he died June 9, 1926.

Both of these officers met death fearlessly in the performance of duty.

ACTIVITIES OF THE FORCE

The arrests for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1926, totaled 93,208 as against 76,021 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, an increase of 17,187. Of this number, 54,783 were white and 38,425 colored; 83,889 were males and 9,319 females. Of the total number arrested 91,584 were able to read and write; 1,624 were unable to do so; 2,751 of the total number arrested were under the age of 17 years;

8,940 were over 17 and under 21 years of age and 81,517 were over 21 years of age.

Arrests for misdemeanors totaled 89,220 as compared with 72,595 for the previous year, a net increase of 16,625. Arrests for felonies totaled 3,988 as compared with 3,426 for the preceding year, a net increase of 562.

Increase in the number of arrests both for felonies and misdemeanors indicate in my judgment increased activity of the force rather than an increase of the disorderly or criminal element. Indeed, a very large percentage of the increase in arrests for misdemeanors is due to the energetic enforcement of the traffic regulations by all members of the force.

As in past years, the department has established an enviable record in the arrest of persons guilty of committing the more serious crimes and particularly the crime of murder, the most serious of all felonies, and again in an effort to strongly emphasize the crying need of adequate legislation dealing with the subject of carrying weapons, I desire to submit as a part of this report complete and comprehensive statistics of absorbing interest with relation to the crimes of murder, manslaughter, assault with a dangerous weapon, assault to kill, and carrying concealed weapons, with comparative figures for the years 1924 and 1925:

In one case of murder, two persons were implicated. One has been arrested; the other one is known, but has not been arrested.

In another case of murder, a father killed his two sons but was exonerated, the verdict of the coroner's jury being that he acted in self-defense.

LIQUOR LAW ENFORCEMENT

In each precinct an officer is assigned to the specific duty of enforcing the provisions of the Volstead Act and all other acts relating to the sale and use of liquor in the District of Columbia, in addition to which a special squad under the command of a captain working from a central point devotes its energies to the general enforcement of said laws. By an arrangement with the prohibition authorities, men so assigned are given special commissions as revenue officers, an arrangement which has proven of immense value to the department in its active efforts to stamp out violations of the law referred to.

The assignment of certain members of the force to the special duty of enforcing these laws does not in any manner relieve other members of the force from a like responsibility, and the activities of the force along the lines indicated are best evidenced by the following figures, which show clearly the measure of unceasing and productive activity of the department in this essential branch of law enforcement:

AUTOMOBILE THEFT DEPARTMENT

The automobile thief is the natural development of the increased use of the automobile, and in this department the entire time of four detective sergeants is taken in investigating thefts of this character and in the recovery of stolen automobiles and the arrest of the thieves. ## SANITARY BUREAU

A member of the Metropolitan police force is assigned to this bureau, is charged with the duty of investigating cases of alleged insane persons and preparation of the necessary papers for the detention of such persons.

During the year ended June 30, 1926, 457 patients were admitted to St. Elizabeths Hospital, out of whom three were readmission cases. Three hundred and sixteen persons were taken into custody by the police and held for mental observation.

TRAFFIC BUREAU

The traffic bureau reported during the fiscal year a total of 43,873 arrests for violations of the various traffic laws and regulations, an increase of 10,764 traffic arrests as compared with the previous fiscal year.

HACK INSPECTION SERVICE

During the year 1,575 licenses for public passenger vehicles were issued, 3,005 applications for licenses to drive public vehicles were approved, 24,260 inspections of public vehicles were made, 900 public hack or wagon stands were inspected, and 50 complaints concerning conduct of public vehicle drivers were investigated.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

The school of instruction was in operation from January 4, 1926, to the close of the fiscal year, during which period 136 members of the force were each given a period of intensive instruction covering 30 days in subjects such as the code of law, police regulations, city geography, first aid to the injured, making of investigations and reports, evidence and court procedure, miscellaneous acts of Congress, definition and classification of crime, origin of law, powers of government. The police school continues to demonstrate its value to the department.

BOARD OF SURGEONS

The board of police and fire surgeons report a total of 1,956 officers granted sick leave during the fiscal year, 4,847 visits by Metropolitan police officers to the police clinic, and 897 house visits by members of the board of surgeons. In addition thereto, the board of police and fire surgeons have treated 289 park police officers and 49 members of the White House police force.

WOMAN'S BUREAU—HOUSE OF DETENTION

During the last fiscal year the woman's bureau of the police service dealt with 1,425 cases; 1,012 complaints were made directly to the woman's bureau; 742 arrests—566 females, 186 males. Among these were 222 without employment or visible means of support; 58 trades and professions were represented; 108 housewives; 94 schoolboys and 86 schoolgirls; 19 teachers; 1 solicitor. All persons taken into custody were able to read and write. Twelve nationalities were represented—Canada, Cuba, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Lithuania, Poland, Russia, Spain, and Sweden. Practically every one of the 3,897 persons admitted to the house of detention were interviewed by members of the woman's bureau who were instrumental in effecting many of the adjustments. A large number of children and young persons on the streets, in dance halls, motion-picture theaters, stores, etc., were warned and taken or sent to homes or schools and parents or teachers communicated with; 1143 missing persons were reported, 472 of whom were returned to their homes; 227 located by the members of the woman's bureau; 207 located by precincts; and 237 still carried as missing. Many of these have no doubt returned home or been located, but the information has not been communicated to this department. In every instance of a young person reported missing, members of the woman's bureau visited the home, and in 179 cases it was necessary for this bureau to effect an adjustment.

The house of detention is continuing to serve a much-needed want in the District of Columbia in the detaining of females and juveniles coming into the custody of the police.

In the year just ended, the total entrants numbered 3,897, classified as follows:

White boys.....	607
Colored boys.....	929
White girls.....	217
Colored girls.....	307
White females over 17 years of age and under 21.....	150
Colored females over 17 years of age and under 21.....	277
White females over 21 years of age.....	525
Colored females over 21 years of age.....	885

Total number of females cared for.....	2,361
--	-------

The average daily population at this institution for the year was 39 plus.

The total number of days in which persons were detained was 13,677; 44,061 meals were served at a total cost of $7,305.41, the average cost per meal being 17.3 cents. This figure as to cost takes into consideration gas, ice, food supplies, and the salary of a cook.

The average period of detention was 3.7 days.

The house was improved during the year by the installation of an oil-burning heater, which will materially reduce labor incident to keeping the institution warm. Considerable painting was accomplished and some of the lawns were replanted.

I feel, with the facilities at hand, that this institution is a credit to the District of Columbia, and that worth-while work is being done.

TRAFFIC

The traffic problem continues to present many difficulties, notwithstanding which fact I am of the opinion that there has been a decided improvement in traffic conditions generally. The installation of the automatic light control on Sixteenth Street and on Massachusetts Avenue has proven most beneficial to motorists, to pedestrians, and to the police, and to my mind represents a great forward step toward the solution of many of our traffic problems and the administration finds itself looking forward to the time when this system of traffic control will be extended through the entire congested section of the city and to all main arteries of traffic.

There has also been marked improvement in the methods of examination of applicants for permits to operate motor vehicles and I am glad to note that it is becoming increasingly difficult for the incompetent and inexperienced person to procure such a permit. I am of the opinion that when the record system at present being installed is completed and perfected it will be next to impossible for any person whose permit has been revoked for cause to have said permit renewed without conclusive demonstration to the satisfaction of the director of traffic to the effect that reissuance of such permit will not be in any manner a menace to safety of life and property.

There were 86 traffic deaths during the period covered by this report, which figure also represents the total of such deaths during the previous fiscal year. There were 134 persons seriously injured as against 47 persons so injured during the preceding fiscal year; 3,121 persons sustained injuries of either serious or minor character as against 3,120 during the preceding year; accidents resulting in property damage only totaled 4,928 as against 6,242 during the preceding fiscal year, a marked decrease. The grand total of traffic accidents and casualties was 8,049 as against a total of 9,378 for the preceding year.

Amendments to the traffic act recently adopted will, I am convinced, result in further improvement, as the director of traffic is, under such amendmets, given greater and more definite authority regarding revocation and suspension of permits and his control of traffic matters generally is more clearly defined.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Police headquarters and central station.—I can not too strongly impress upon the commissioners the urgent necessity for the erection of a modern building to be used as police headquarters and central station. The Metropolitan police department has in the past few years witnessed a remarkable development both in personnel and in the number and complexity of the problems which it is called upon to meet and it is becoming increasingly difficult to transact the great volume of public business with which the department is charged with that degree of efficiency so essential to this important branch of the public service and it is, therefore, urged that a special bill be prepared and introduced making appropriation for the purchase of ground and the erection of such a building.

2. Garage and repair shop.—It is again recommended that there be erected a modern and up to date garage and repair shop to care for the constantly increasing fleet of motor vehicles of various descriptions used by the department in the prosecution of its work.

3. Street railway crossing policemen.—The major and superintendent of police in his report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, presented an outline of various acts of Congress providing for the establishment and maintenance of a force of street railway crossing policemen and recommended that steps be taken to effect transfer of the 63 men now so employed to the permanent rolls of the Metropolitan police force and that appropriation be made for the payment of salaries of such men from public funds rather than from funds of the various railway companies as is now the case.

The time is fast approaching when the installation of the electric light traffic control system will enable the department to dispense in a very large measure with the continuous service of police officers at many of the crossings. It is therefore again urged that steps be taken to transfer these men to the rolls of the Metropolitan police force.

4. Fugitive law.—The enactment of a fugitive law is recommended.

5. Weapon law.—Recommendation again is made for the passage of an adequate weapon law.

6. Drug addiction and medical practice regulations.—It is again recommended that legislation be enacted making drug addiction in the District of Columbia a felony and that the medical practice act be amended so as to provide for adequate regulation of persons practicing as chiropractors and osteopaths and of all persons who attempt to treat disease, injury, or deformity.

REGULATION OF DANCE HALLS

I am constrained to renew recommendation made by my predecessor to the effect that legislation be enacted defining dance halls and conferring on the Commissioners of the District of Columbia wide authority in regulating such places. This could be best accomplished by repealing section 7 of the act of Congress approved July 1, 1902, known as the general license law, and giving to the commissioners specific authority to enact regulations relative to the licensing of businesses, trades, and professions in the District of Columbia, and to enact necessary regulations for the conduct of such businesses, trades, professions, and callings.

The department meets with much difficulty in its efforts to regulate public dance halls, the courts having held that dancing academies where instructions in dancing are given are not dance halls in the generally accepted sense of the term and, as a result, persons frequently set themselves up as instructors in dancing and the fee charged is referred to as a fee for instruction rather than as a fee for admission, which is nothing more or less than an evasion of the law.

Conditions have materially changed since the enactment of the general license law, and it is believed that much better results would be obtained in a general way in the licensing and regulating of many of the businesses, trades, and professions if the commissioners were given necessary authority to enact needful regulations therefor.

THE VAGRANCY ACT

It is recommended that the corporation counsel be directed to prepare, and that the commissioners request Congress to enact, an adequate vagrancy law that will stand the test of the courts. The police have met with much difficulty recently in dealing with the question of vagrancy because of the difficulty in securing the evidence held by the courts to be necessary under the present act to establish the offense. It is submitted that a vagrancy act which will stand the test of the courts is undoubtedly one of the most powerful weapons which can be given into the hands of the police in its efforts to deal effectively with crime and disorder.

ADOPTION OF SYSTEM OF MAGISTRATES' COURTS

It is urgently recommended that there be established in the District of Columbia four magistrates' courts, such courts to sit at various police stations at specified hours of the day and night to hear all minor cases of violations of municipal regulations where the penalty to be imposed does not exceed a fine of $40 in any one case. The establishment of such a system would undoubtedly result in a great saving of time spent by members of the force in police and traffic courts and would also be of great benefit to the citizen in that he would be afforded an immediate trial of his case.

The same system has been established in other cities and has proven very beneficial, and I am convinced that the recent and future growth of the District of Columbia makes such a system very necessary to the prompt and efficient transaction of court business.

REVOLVER PRACTICE

It is a source of regret that the department has been unable to provide practice for members of the force in the use of the revolver, due to lack of proper range and other facilities.

In the past two years approximately 500 men have been appointed to the force and it is, of course, deemed essential that they be given intensive training and practice in the use of the service revolver, and to this end it is recommended that effort be made to provide an up-to-date pistol range.

Reports of subordinate bureaus and officials of the department not included herein, are on file at police headquarters for reference, and appended hereto as a part of this report will be found certain statistics essential to the report.
